A Volunteer Army!

Whilst accompanying the children in Year 1 on a school trip to the Brooklands Museum of Transport just before half term, I was reminded of how fortunate we are here at Farncombe to have such a wonderful group of adults who volunteer their time to support the children.

Taking learning outside the classroom brings the curriculum to life but it is because of the selfless dedication of 'parent helpers' that we are able to make our school visits such a wonderful experience for the children. Whether local visits to the church, walks around the community, trips to museums or visits to neighbouring schools – the help and support of volunteers is invaluable.

On a weekly basis, all of our classes are the happy recipients of volunteers who give up their time to hear readers – something that has a hugely positive impact upon the children. As well as supporting the children by hearing them read, we also have a dedicated team of adults who regularly come in to support the children in being able to choose a library book and help promote a love of reading.

During an INSET day in the spring term, a number of parents gave up their morning to come in and spend some time reviewing the school's vision and values - a piece of work that gave all stakeholders a chance to reflect upon the things that we want for the pupils in our school moving forward.

These are but a few snapshots of the breadth and depth of support that we receive. I would like to take the opportunity to extend a heartfelt thanks from all of the children and staff at Farncombe to those who selflessly give up their time to supporting us as a school; it has an enormous impact and we are very grateful.

Mr Joe Bibby – Head of School

Farncombe Friends

As a school community, we are very lucky to have the support of the Farncombe Friends. The role of the Friends is to organise events across the course of the year that engage, excite and inspire the children which also raise funds for the school in the process. Without the dedication and commitment of those who volunteer for the Friends, we would not be able to enjoy events such as the upcoming school summer fair; something that is loved by the children. If you have any capacity to be able to support the Friends in their amazing work, please get in touch via farncombefriends@yahoo.com
